'Tis the Season: Making Spirits Bright in Long-Term Care

As the calendar flips to December, forget the shorter days and cold temperatures that are on the way. Let's not harp on flu season, either, because December is meant to be festive — the most wonderful time of the year, as the song goes.

People of almost every culture and faith tradition celebrate holidays or special occasions in December when they gather with family and friends.

Nursing home residents can get in the spirit, too, and you have every right to celebrate as you choose. During the day, residents are free to leave the nursing home for holiday gatherings, and you may coordinate with your facility to venture out for overnight stays with family or friends.

If you are staying in, nursing homes must accommodate visits from loved ones, even amid outbreaks of the flu, COVID, or other infectious diseases.

The National Consumer Voice for Quality Long-Term Care recommends that you prepare for the holiday season by ensuring that you and any visitors are fully vaccinated. Any unvaccinated individuals should wear a mask to help protect themselves and others.

If you are ever denied visitation, call the Long-Term Care Ombudsman (LTCO) at 1-877-582-6992.

For the latest on outbreaks, vaccination, and other long-term care concerns, visit the New Jersey Department of Health website at <https://www.nj.gov/health/ltc/>.

Sharing Stories

NEW LTCO WEBPAGE SPOTLIGHTS RESIDENTS

Every resident has a unique story, and the Community Engagement Program will tell some of those tales via a new page on the LTCO website. New resident profiles will be posted each month at <https://www.nj.gov/ooie/residentprofiles.shtml>.

The web page launched this fall with an article about Stacy Moore, a resident of Preakness Healthcare Center who has been a leader in the resident-led effort to increase the personal needs allowance (PNA) from $50 to $140 a month.

To get involved in the PNA effort, please contact Community Engagement at community@ltco.nj.gov or 609-690-4740.

FEEDBACK: If you have comments, questions, or ideas for future stories, please email them to outreach@ltco.nj.gov.
